

Proposed Table of Contents: Festive Devils of the Americas
DRAFT VERSION—UNPUBLISHED
MAY 2011

Foreword Diana Taylor
Introduction Milla Cozart Riggio, Paolo Vignolo and Angela Marino

Translations by Sylvia Rivera Cusicanqui

Part I: Representations of Festive Devils

A. Andean Region

Miguel Rubio Zapata, La Virgen de la Candelaria y sus diablos danzantes en Puno, Perú

Amiel Cayo, Auto-biographical photo essay on the dancing devils of Peru

Monica Rojas, Resignified Devils: Imagining Peruvian Blackness

Paolo Vignolo, Vía crucis y pasión de una diabla: Patrimonio, derechos culturales y espacio público en el carnaval de Riosucio (Colombia)

B. Caribbean region

Lowell Fiet, "The Vejigante [trickster/diablo] is painted/Green, yellow, and red..." (El vejigante está pintao/Verde, amarillo y colorao . . .)

Angela Marino, Devil Turns: Corpo-political Reversals in the Diablos Danzantes of Ocumare, Venezuela

Milla Riggio and Rawle Gibbons, Bedevilling Trinidad Carnival

Zeca Ligiéro, Tropical Devil Gently Performances: Food, Alcohol, Sex, Tobacco and Blessings in Any Circumstances

Max Harris, Diabolic Suffering, Whips, and the Burning of Judas: Holy Week in Cabral, Dominican Republic

C. Mexico and the Southwestern United States

Enrique LaMadrid, From Kiva to Fandango to Casino: Demonic Admonitions for Changing Times

Rachel Bowditch, The Inferno: Burning Man and the Tipping Point

Part II: Crucijadas

Paolo Vignolo

Commodification, Commercialization: The Buying Power of the Carnavalesque Devil

Angela Marino

The Devil in Political Crosshairs

Milla Cozart Riggio

Praying to the Devil: Religious Implications of Festive Devils